These off-limits restrictions are established for both personal safety and command discipline. The following prohibitions apply to each zone.

Red Zone: Off-limits to all personnel except emergency travel. If you reside in this area, you are restricted to your quarters, except for emergency travel, or you must leave the area completely. Emergency travel should only be undertaken in order to obtain emergency medical care or to address other emergency circumstances such as a fire or because of conditions posing an immediate threat to life or health.

Amber Zone: Extreme caution should be used in this zone. Travel and outdoor activities should be conducted if absolutely necessary.

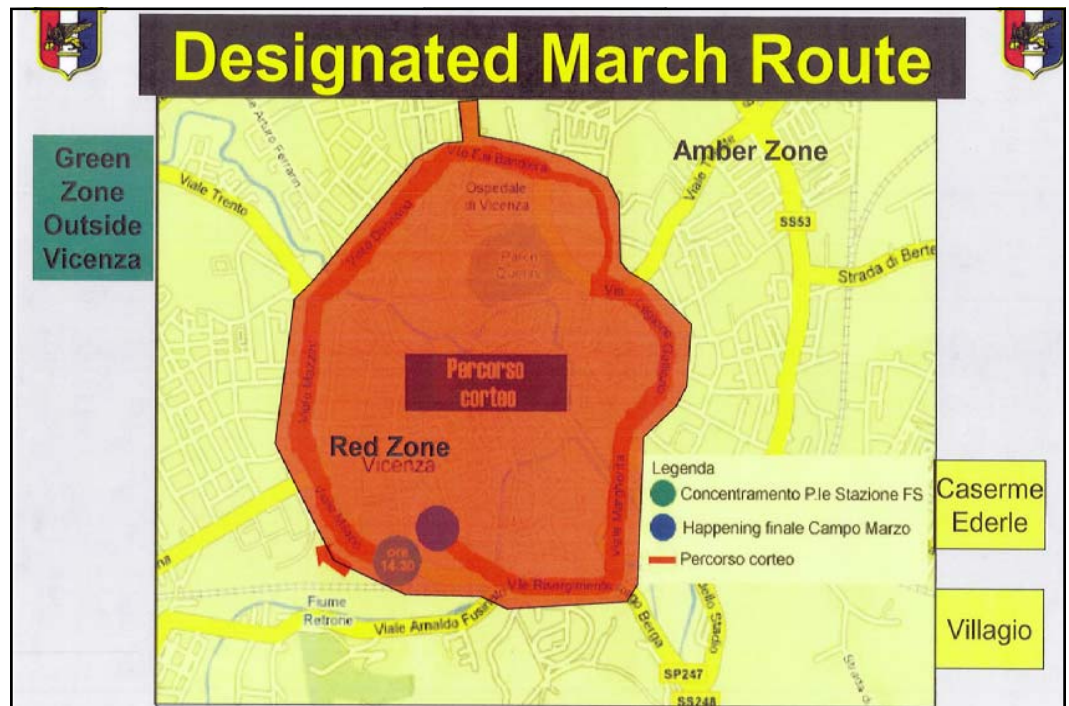

Green Zone: Freedom of movement not restricted in this area, but Soldiers and civilians must be mindful of any suspicious activity.

Soldiers who violate this order are subject to apprehension and potential UCMJ and/or adverse administrative action. Civilian employees and family members who violate this order are subject to apprehension and potential adverse administrative action.

Additionally, family member may face adverse administrative action if they are involved in an incident which: a. causes embarrassment to the US Government, b. is prejudicial to order, morale and discipline in the command, or c. gives rise to conditions in which the family member's safety can no longer be ensured because of adverse public feeling in the area.
